CITADEL RANCH San Jose, California

For centuries, very little has interrupted this example of nature's innate beauty—the spectacular Citadel Ranch. Outside of the area's original founders, few individuals have been privileged enough to view this fertile ranch over the past 40 years. Truly one of California's treasures, the ranch embodies a rare natural splendor best captured in a glimpse of an elk or a bobcat making an early-morning trip to one of its many lakes. Like no other location on earth, the Citadel Ranch is a true jewel full of natural splendor.

HISTORIC SIGNIFICANCE

Numerous local roads and paths offer unique insight into the views early settlers must have encountered as they crossed the area from Sacramento to San Jose via stagecoach. Evidence of the presence of settlers can be found dotting the picturesque points of the ranch. Once home to 400 head of cattle, the ranch still evokes a simple beauty undaunted by time. It is easy to envision the property as a hunting lodge or a majestic ranch; in either regard, this is a rare opportunity to own one of California's most spectacular ranches.

San Jose, California

AWE-INSPIRING LANDS

The Citadel Ranch's sprawling 5,400 acres encompass numerous ponds and lakes, several mountain ridges climbing to more than 3,200 feet, rolling hills, and breathtaking valleys. Situated near the impressive peak of Mount Hamilton, the unspoiled ranch is located in the heart of the rugged and striking central Diablo coastal range. Though just a short distance from the hustle and bustle of the famed Silicon Valley, the surrounding preserve encompasses nearly a million acres of pristine open space featuring oak woodlands, sycamore valleys, pine-topped ridges, and stream-fed canyons. With wildlife ranging from golden eagles and colorful butterflies to trout, elk, mountain lions, and wild boars, this property is truly a natural beauty.

ADDITIONAL HIGHLIGHTS

Other local highlights near the Citadel Ranch include spectacular Henry W. Coe State Park, which comprises more than 87,000 acres of scenic, rugged terrain once home to the Ohlone Indians and the site of the Coe family residence in the first half of the century. Also nearby is Joseph D. Grant County Park, a paradise for outdoor enthusiasts that is known for its 40-mile trail system open to hikers, equestrians, and mountain bikers. And just up the road is the famed Lick Observatory, the University of California's astronomy facility founded in 1888 by the eccentric millionaire James Lick.
